The history of Catholic health care in Canada is a living history with not only a past, but a future as well. It reminds us of our indebtedness to our historical roots and to those leaders who have come before us — those to whom we still look for inspiration, courage and vision. By remembering their lives and actions, we can gain new insight into our identity as the Catholic health care community today, and renewed confidence as we face the unknowns of a new millennium.

This selected bibliography was prepared for the 60th anniversary of the CHAC as an attempt to gather together a compendium of important historical resources related to Catholic health care in Canada. It was our hope to create as comprehensive a list of resources as possible. Naturally such a project is ongoing. The material that is referenced may have been deposited either in public and private libraries or in the archives of religious congregations and Catholic health care organizations. While preparing the Compendium, I added to this bibliography.

Acknowledgements

Over the six years that this project was researched and compiled there are many people I wish to thank for their invaluable assistance and support.

I wish to thank my wife Jennie, for supporting my passion for history and encouraging me as an aficionado of archival documentation. As I worked on this Compendium, she was most understanding of the “after hours” time needed to complete this project.

I wish to thank my colleagues at the CHAC office for all their help and many practical suggestions – James Roche, Hélène Nobert, Sylvie Deliencourt and Annette Foucault.

I acknowledge the assistance of archivists, secretaries of dioceses, CHAC members, and all those who responded to my requests for photographs and information.
