Catholic Nursing Homes in Canada (Long Term Care Facilities)

First Refuge

Second Refuge

Third Refuge

Madame Émilie Gamelin opened her first refuge for the poor and disadvantaged in 1830 in Old Montréal. Her second refuge for the poor was opened in 1832 on Saint-Philippe Street. This refuge included two small residences. Mrs. Gamelin lived with those she served dividing her wealth to maintain the house and providing them food and clothing. Moreover, she regularly visited the poor in residence.

The third refuge was acquired in 1835 at the corner of Saint Catherine Street and Saint Christopher Street. It was called the "Yellow House" and was given to Mrs. Gamelin by a citizen of Montréal, Mr. Olivier Berthelet. The story goes that one day, when this man was visiting the second refuge of Madame Gamelin, one of the old disabled persons said to him: "Sir, you have many houses; if you want, you could give us one of them." The simplicity and the naivety of the good old woman's question was successful. A house painted yellow with two floors, was handed over to the charitable work of Madame Gamelin.

In March 25, 1843, at the Yellow House, seven young women took the habit and therefore initiated the Sisters of Charity of Providence, originally known as the Daughters of Charity, Servants of the Poor. The construction of the Asylum of Providence began in 1841.

On May 24, 1843, the Asylum opened and the Sisters of Providence, along with their foundress, Madame Émilie Gamelin, began their ministry to seniors, orphans, the deaf and those who suffered from mental illness.
